MONDAY.3: COMMAS, DASHES & PARENTHESES (CONTINUED)

Commas
(neutral)

These can be used to add a nonrestrictive clause with a neutral emphasis. In other words, the information is presented as neither strong nor weak; it is equal in all ways to the main clause it is attached to.

My sister, who just turned three, can read chapter books.

Dashes
(strong)

These can be used to add a nonrestrictive clause with a strong emphasis. If a writer is really trying to make a point, he or she will use dashes to draw attention to specific words.

My sister—who just turned three—can read chapter books.

Parentheses
(weak)

They can be used to add a nonrestrictive clause with a weak emphasis. These serve the exact opposite function of dashes; they take the emphasis away from the clause. Many readers think of information in parentheses as optional and might even skip over it when reading.

My sister (who just turned three) can read chapter books.

MONDAY.4: USE SUBJECTIVE, OBJECTIVE & POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS

For this item of the review, you will select a correct pronoun to complete a sentence. You will then identify if the pronoun is subjective, objective, or possessive.

Subjective pronouns act as the subject of a sentence and take the place of a noun: I, you, she, he, it, we, and they (you and it can also be objective pronouns).
Example: Shannon asked her dad if she could go to the movies.
(she replaces Shannon)

Example: We hailed a taxi, but it never stopped.
(it replaces taxi)

Objective pronouns receive the action of the verb: me, you, her, him, it, us, and them (you and it can also be subjective pronouns).
Example: Barry was only trying to help you.
(you is the object of help)

Example: Your grandfather gave her his car.
(her is the object of gave)

TUESDAY.1: USE INTENSIVE PRONOUNS

For this item of the review, you will complete a sentence using the correct intensive pronoun.

Intensive pronouns emphasize the antecedent in a sentence: myself, yourself, herself, himself, itself, yourselves, ourselves, and themselves.

Example: Mira is going to wash the car herself.
(herself emphasizes Mira)

Example: They themselves raised money for the church.
(themselves emphasizes they)

TUESDAY.2: APPLY VOCABULARY

For this item of the review, you will choose various scenarios that apply to a given vocabulary word. Remember to consider multiple meanings when selecting appropriate scenarios. Some weeks may have more than one correct answer.

TUESDAY.3: GREEK & LATIN ROOTS & AFFIXES

For this item of the review, you will find related words for a given root. This may require you to conduct a simple Internet search for words related to the root. However, before looking for words online, see if you can think of some related words on your own first. Once you find five words, think about how they connect to the meaning of the root.

TUESDAY.4: RECOGNIZE & CORRECT VAGUE PRONOUNS

For this item of the review, you will identify the vague pronoun within a sentence.

A vague pronoun does not clearly connect to the antecedent (the person or object that it refers to) and thus confuses your reader.

Incorrect: The bus ran into the sign, but it was not damaged.
The pronoun it is vague because we don't know what antecedent (the bus or the sign) it's referring to. Was the bus not damaged? Was the sign not damaged?

Correct: The sign was not damaged when the bus ran into it.
~or~
The bus was not damaged when it ran into the sign.
